

Welsh States His Platform

There have been repeated demands that candidates for office at the April election, state their platform. For my friends it is not necessary to state my position on city affairs. The best of the citizens that do not know me, I will say that my platform is very simple, one for all, all for one.

With the wonderful possibilities that confront Janesville, there should be no discord at this time. We must do the things that are absolutely necessary to prepare for the growth of the city. The population that is coming here, only depending on our ability to prepare homes for them.

We must lay all necessary water mains, and sanitary sewers that are needed, at the earliest possible moment to meet the requirements of this growth. We must provide a high school site at once, in order that the board of education may be able to build a school next year. There is no question that a school is needed. The board have stated they can get along this year although a school is needed now.

We are to vote on a bond issue of $100,000 at the next election for the purchase of a site and the money to employ architects, add to do the preliminary work this year. As chairman of the finance committee, I wish to say that the increase in the assessed valuation of the city by July 1 of this year, on account of the new growth, will easily take care of this issue, without adding anything to the tax rate. A bond issue in 1920 for a new high school, will easily be taken care of in the same manner. Our assessed valuation in July, 1920, will in all probability exceed $20,000,000. I think this estimate is conservative.

Praise for Council.

I know that the present city council has worked together harmoniously for the last year. All members have been inspired with one single purpose, to do all possible with the means at hand.

I believe all the men now before the people's election are willing (if not they should be) to continue this purpose. With so much at stake it is the duty of every voter to carefully select the men that they think are best fitted to carry on the work that is already started. Every piece of property in the city has increased in actual value since the advent of the General Motors company, at least 15 per cent. And if the representatives of this city are big enough (and I know they will be) there will be a still larger increase in the next two years.

I am a candidate for the office of mayor, and am asking for the support of the voters.

In return I say that, if elected, I will be the mayor of all the people. I have made no promises to any party, faction, clique or personal friend. Nor will I make any. And no matter whether a citizen supports me or not, I will give heed to any request and if reasonable, and within the law, will do my utmost that it may be granted.

Won't Forget Taxpayer.

I shall at all times have in mind the taxpayer, and shall at all times pay and keep taxation within reasonable limits and his ability to pay. I was born in this city, have lived here all my life and expect to die here. All my interests are here. For the last 25 years I have done an interstate business and have received no financial benefits from this city.

There have been a number of labor and have paid the highest scale of wages in the industry that I am engaged in. Prior to that time, I doubt if there is a working man in this city who worked longer hours. I know what it means to live on a pay envelope, and all my sympathy goes out to man and his family at this period of high prices. I am making this statement for the reason that it is being reported that I am antagonistic to labor unions. I have paid this year to my women workers a bonus of 10 per cent above the regular wage scale agreed on. I have also cancelled checks to prove it. I am making this statement to defend myself against these slanderous statements.

I am asking that all the men who are voters with full knowledge of the responsibilities involved, and if elected I will faithfully perform the duties required of me. In conclusion let me ask that the citizens of this city cloud their minds on this bond question.

There is no question of site involved. We are to vote on a bond issue for a site only. A vote against the issue means that the city is not to provide enough schools for its children and nothing else. The board of education has the sole power.

OH, LADY! LADY! SURE SOME STYLE SHOW

The Parisian couple decked with the smart hat from the Janesville hat shops, the evening gown or walking suit, as the case may be from the Janesville ready-to-wear shops, shed with the Oxford from the Janesville shoe shop, will make a picture worth anyone's gaze when the curtains go up at 7:30 tonight, opening the city's annual spring show in 20 of the merchants' shops.

STAGE SET FOR BIG BOOSTER GATHERING AT MYERS TONIGHT

The stage is set for the big good roads booster mass meeting at the Myers theater tonight. George W. Hull, chairman of the Rock County board of supervisors will preside. The speakers will be, Frank A. Cannon, secretary of the Wisconsin Good Roads association, and C. E. Moore, county highway commissioner, and a number of other speakers. The program will open promptly at 7:30 with the showing of a moving picture "Over Changed Roads in a World of Change." The film used so successfully in the Illinois campaign for the passage of a $60,000,000 bond issue for concrete roads.

From 7:15 to 7:30, the time set for the unveiling of the windows for the annual spring style exhibit, the Bower City band will play in front of the theater.

The meeting is open to all and the Rock County Good Roads association is anxious to have voters who do not favor the issue present so that they may receive the convincing arguments and facts concerning it. Mr. Cannon and Mr. Moore are strong speakers and are familiar with their subjects.

Mr. Hull has been presenting the merits of the proposed bond issue to the people of Rock County through the medium of daily talks in the Gazette under the title, "The Road Ahead for Rock County Folks." His talks began Monday on the basic principles involved in the bond issue. "The Road Ahead for Rock County Folks" on Tuesday, and "The Benefits That Concrete Trunk Lines Will Bring to Farmers on Secondary Roads" on Wednesday.

In today's issue Mr. Hull presents "The Feasibility and Economy of Concrete as a Road Surface Material." Tomorrow he will set forth some interesting points on "Investing in Concrete Roads as the Most Profitable Method of Permanently Extending Our County Highway System."

Treat In Store.

On Saturday the title of his talk will be, "Signs Ahead for Rock County Roads." In this last concluding article, Gazette readers will find a treat in store in some revelations which Mr. Hull will make in regard to the enlarged use of the road and the rapid development. Neighborhood roads as such are receding into the shades of the past, along with the trail and the country road as a rural motor express and freight line is coming into view.

Gazette readers who will vote next Tuesday and who have not been following Mr. Hull's printed talks should not fail to get the preceding series and follow them through to the conclusion on Saturday.

"BUILD A HOUSE" CAMPAIGN TO BE LAUNCHED SHORTLY

To ascertain the number of people who are going to build houses in Janesville this year and to keep a check on them so as to prevent an over-production of certain types, the Chamber of Commerce will inaugurate a "Build a House" campaign in the near future. This decision was reached at a meeting of the board of directors in the chamber office late yesterday afternoon.

It is the idea of the chamber to co-operate with the citizens in order to secure results and to meet the existing emergency in an efficient and business-like manner. Definite plans for the intensive campaign will be announced in a few days.

People planning to build this spring or summer will be asked to furnish information as to the type of houses they are going to erect, their size, costs, and other details. In this way an over-production of houses of the four-room type, for instance, can be prevented. The Chamber of Commerce wants to be of all possible assistance to prospective builders, and by this method of procedure it is thought the best results can be obtained.

The chamber will be able to furnish definite information as to the number of families to be brought in operation as to the type of houses they will want to rent or buy.

INDEMNITIES AND RHINE 2 CHIEF ISSUES

CLEMENCEAU GIVES FIGURES TO SUPPORT DEMANDS OF ALLIES

CONFEREES GET TAFT PROPOSAL

Special Meetings by Executives Will Continue Until Pact is Signed.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Paris, March 27.—President Wilson's study was again the center of interest today as he with his premier, Georges Clemenceau, and the other members of the French cabinet, resumed the effort to settle the questions standing in the way of peace.

An event of the peace conference has excited such interest and discussion as the action of the president and the premier in taking affairs into their own hands, and while cynicism and sarcasm are yet in evidence in some quarters, including the French chamber of deputies, still the prevailing view in conference circles is that the time has arrived for the adoption of a strong policy assuring early and definite results.

Orlando and House Confer

Previous to the meeting Premier Orlando spent an hour with Colonel House discussing the question of the Adriatic, which with the reparations and the Rhine frontier are the three vital issues obstructing progress. The meetings, beginning at 11 o'clock yesterday, continued throughout the day. The question of indemnity was again the main stumbling block.

Premier Clemenceau had not brought all his figures with him yesterday and wished more time. Today he was fully equipped. Premier Lloyd George had called Edwin Samuel Montague, secretary for India and former financial secretary of the treasury, to Paris from London, and Premier Clemenceau had consulted Louis Loucheur, the French minister of reconstruction, in addition to the regular cabinet.

Financial Chiefs Agree

All three financial chiefs agreed in the main with the views formulated by the American delegates concerning the reparations and the ability to pay, but it still remained for the premier to take a final decision on the total of the indemnities.

The Italian financial experts expressed themselves as much gratified at the showing made by the American financial experts alongside the leading financial authorities of France and England.

The Rhine frontier question may come up tomorrow (Thursday) and President Wilson has outlined a plan of an agreement.

The Adriatic issue is the most stubborn question remaining and with no indication of a compromise with the Italian reports of disorder at Spalato are not confirmed by American reports direct from that place. These latter reports show the Serbs working effectively and peacefully while the Italian admiral is reported to be arresting a large number of Jugoslavs. When the Americans report state, was that the United States was not a party to the secret treaty of London, and therefore had no status in the controversy. Such conditions as these it is pointed out, are seriously hampering the solution of the Adriatic question.

Meet In Wilson's Study

President Wilson's study, where the memorable meetings are occurring, is on the first floor of his Paris residence, with the windows looking out upon the Bois de Boulogne. The room is rather ornately decorated and a number of paintings by old masters hang on the walls. Amid these surroundings the discussion is proceeding in a most unconventional manner. There is no green table; there are no stenographers, no speechers. The avoidance of speeches is proving the greatest help to progress as the long discourses in the council of ten took up most of the time of that body. The absence of stenographers leaves the discussion untrammelled by records and permits of the freest exchange of views.

After the lengthy session with the premier, president, and the other members of the cabinet, the discussion proceeded in the chair last night completed consideration of the covenant referring it to a drafting committee consisting of Col. House, Lord Robert Cecil and Ferdinand Larralde, dean of the Paris law faculty. This committee will correct the phraseology where necessary, and refer it back to the commission for final consideration before it is reported to the peace conference.

Johnny's Luck Puts Him Over

(BY HARRIETTE WHEATON)

When Johnny comes marching home again, the time is not far hence then mother will say, "Why Johnny, my lad, how nicely you said your lesson."

And Johnny will say "Yes, wasn't that fine?" and inwardly chuckle with glee.

But, Oh, Johnny, Oh how he did quake when mother walked into the school room door.

Teacher smiled. Mother beamed. Johnny quaked within, while, Mary across the aisle, just winked and giggled.

Johnny Gets a Jolt

Johnny would have to be the star pupil that afternoon, that much was settled. But, of course, he might have something to say in the case. And he had worked only the first problem. Why hadn't Mother told him she was coming to visit school, then he could have—

"Arithmetic class," says teacher. Faces forward, tablets and pencils lined up, books opened to page 82. A brisk little moment of mental arithmetic just for simulation.

"4 plus 7 minus 3 plus 5 equals— Answer, (teacher looks around) Johnny."

Johnny Wilson-like, being found of the number 13, pops it out. Luck is see how she stands the shock.

With him. He squints at mother to do, eight off to seven," says teacher. "Number five work first problem at the board." Johnny was five. Up he trudged his little heels just pounding the floor.

No Faces the Battery

"Bright boy," thinks he. "My stars!" thinks teacher. "My son" thinks Mother.

School is out. Mother stops to talk to teacher about her dutiful son. Did he study at school, get his lessons, mischievous, any chance of passing to the next grade, and all those many questions.

Johnny's face wore a peculiar expression. Embarrassment? Not exactly. "Time to leave? Somewhat."

"Well I will have to keep him in more of nights and have him recite his lessons to..." Mother was talking. Nuff sed. It was seven steps to the door, eight off to seven, outside. Johnny teleported them almost into one. And right by the door was Mary. More luck.

"Just wait till your Mamma comes to visit," he flings back. He's off.

Many Visit Schools

Johnny's Bobbies, Tommies, all are trying on Johnny's shoes. Visits the school week may catch them in a misfit. And tomorrow is the last day. All their mothers and fathers will probably come on that day.

Like to know who issued the invitation, anyway," mutters Bob. "My Dad was here yesterday afternoon, so I am safe. And yesterday afternoon was my turn at the manual training class at the high school, huh? Well I would like to have seen Dad. He says he likes my teacher, too, what do you know about that?"

"Won't Yield to Bolsheviks"

Paris, March 27.—"Our national sentiment is too strong to yield to Bolshevik temptations," said Dr. Karl Kramarz, Czechoslovak premier, at a dinner tonight. "Our nation will stand firm against it, unless it is overcome by Bolshevikism's main agent, hunger."

Among the guests were M. Benes, Czechoslovak foreign minister, M. Trubitch, one of the Bohemian delegates to the peace conference, Basil Maklakov, Russian ambassador to France; Prince Lvoff, former Russian premier and now in Paris in the interest of the anti-Bolshevik forces. In Russia, and Boris Stukhovich of the former military government of Petrograd, who is in this city as an associate of Prince Lvoff.

Dr. Kramarz admits that Bolshevism is in a dangerous proximity to Czechoslovakia, but was distinctly optimistic as to the ultimate failure of this system of government. He added, however, that the Bolsheviks are victorious in Russia, then Russia will inevitably fall under German influence. He said that the economic situation in Czechoslovakia has been much alleviated by the receipt of supplies from overseas.

BLOODHOUNDS CATCH YEGGMAN NEAR LODI

Lodi, Wis., March 27.—Bandits dynamited the safe in the office of the W. W. Steele Lumber company, early this morning and escaped with about $10,000 in cash, mostly in Liberty bonds. With the aid of the bloodhounds from Rockford one of the yeggs was found on the edge of town, and taken to the Rock County jail. Posses are searching for others who are believed to be connected with the looting.

The Rockford bloodhounds passed through Janesville this morning en route home after their work at Lodi early this morning. The prisoner, said to be a retired yeggmán, lived but a short distance from the lumber company and, according to officers accompanying the man-trailers, he confessed the job when caught.

HOUSES TO BE BUILT IN ALL PARTS OF CITY

The 60 houses which are going to be built by the Janesville Housing corporation are not all going to be constructed on the Racine and Fremont streets property, H. J. Cunningham, secretary of the corporation, said today.

The corporation is going to build in all parts of the city. Wherever a man wants a house built by us, we will build it. Applications are now being received from people living in all wards. Of course, a number of homes will be built on Racine and Fremont streets but the corporation is by no means going to limit its work to that section of the city.

Questionnaires for people who desire to have homes built by the corporation are now ready and may be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce. Temporary headquarters are being maintained at the Chamber of Commerce until offices have been obtained. A meeting of the board of directors of the corporation will be held in the chamber office this afternoon for the purpose of discussing further the qualifications of the different men who have applied for the position as manager. It is expected that a manager will be named by Saturday.

Evansville, March 27.—Considerable interest is being shown throughout the county in the recent action of the council of defense.

Women's clubs and men's organizations are considering the question of asking the county board to engage a county health nurse at once and voting to endorse the move. The Women's Literary club of Evansville last Monday evening unanimously adopted resolutions to be presented to the board of supervisors. The Art League of Janesville unanimously endorsed the move.

The City Federation of Edgerton women visited the county chairman, Mrs. Walter Green, to present the subject at their meeting Tuesday and extended their hearty endorsement to the step toward securing better health conditions for children.

Officers of the Janesville Chamber of Commerce and of the Edgerton Chamber of Commerce have expressed their interest and will present the subject to members at an early date.

The new state law, pending, if passed, will make a county nurse mandatory, but will not be effective for two years. Thirteen other counties now maintain county nurses and testify that they are the best investment voted by their board of supervisors.

RECORDS FILED OF ALL COUNTY MEN IN WAR

The office of the Rock County War History committee, room 24, post office, is open every afternoon from 2 to 3 o'clock. A new modern four-drawer filing case with steel floors and slides has been installed, in which the military records of every man in war service from Janesville district are being filed as rapidly as brought in.

Soldiers and sailors, or their relatives and friends, are invited to call to see if the records are as complete as possible, to bring addition information, or to secure a record card for filling out. There is a folder for every man in which it is desired to file his military record card, his photograph, newspaper clippings referring to him, and copies of letters or parts of letters describing his life and experiences while in service.

All other records have been sealed and sent to Washington, D. C. If the information now in the possession of the families becomes lost or scattered as often happens, this Rock County War History File will be the only available source of information to which the family can refer in future years to ascertain the soldier's true history in the great war, the dates of his service, his training, the battles in which he took part, his honors, and his experiences in camps in this country and abroad.

WARNING TO PARENTS.

In the last two days, young boys
have been taken before a local court, charged with serious offenses. One has been accused of stealing a sum of money. It is said he has confessed.
Three others are alleged to have taken an automobile from in front of a church and indulged in a ride.
The boys were given a severe lecture by the court and plans are being made to shape their destinies so that they would get away from the environment which had led them into trouble.
The Gazette has not, and will not,
publish the names of these youths. It does not believe that good will come of it. These boys have made mistakes. By publishing the stories of their crimes, although perhaps to a degree the effect would be to warn others against the pitfalls of wrongdoing, the harm that might result in after life is too great.

These boys should be punished;
they should be taught that such conduct, if continued, leads to prison bars and disgrace. At the same time an opportunity should be given each one to come back to respectability.
Those who have disgraced themselves and their parents are just at the portal of young manhood. What their position in society will be in the future depends upon the lessons
they learn through their experiences.
An interest should be taken in each one of them. It will be. An organization of Janesville men will see that these lads have a chance. If they make the best of it the community will be rewarded. If they fall into deeper degradation they will perhaps spend a greater portion of their lives in steel cells.

Other boys who have been skimming the edge of danger should be disciplined by their parents with the necessity of shunning bad company.
Parents should not wait until their boys get into trouble before learning their habits. Youth should be encouraged to seek the better things at the time their destinies are being moulded.

MORE PURE-BRED STOCK.

A plan for increasing the production of pure-bred cattle is suggested in a recent article in Kimball's Dairy Farmer. It follows:
"Some of the progressive breeders
of pure bred livestock in Wisconsin have set an example that is worthy of being followed by breeders elsewhere. They have agreed to exchange pure bred bulls for scrub bulls, even up, providing the new owners of the pure-bred animals will agree to use them for a period of two years."
Without such a plan, it is probable one would say that all men would accept a proposition like that; but they won't. There will be a few who will continue to hang back because they doubt the good faith of the men who are aggressive enough to make such a proposition.

Herein, however, is a splendid example of good business judgment, as possible. Any place will have disadvantages in itself, and faults in location for a lot of people.

Everybody agrees that we need a new high school, but no site can be selected that will please everybody.
If we have to wait until we have a site
that everyone will like, we shall never
have a new school.

of the MOMENT

THE REASON.

Several centuries ago
A crime was committed in Rome,
Which attracted much attention
At that time and was given
The name of "The Roman Index."
A score years later, in the name of a man by the name of Caesar,
Julius Caesar, in fact,
Was set upon by his friends
And was stabbed in the forum.
The forum being a wild spot.
His friend, a guy named Brutus,
Put on the finishing touches.
They gave him some sort of excuse.
At the time, we believe
They did it not because they Loved Uncle Julius less
But Rome more—
But that wasn't the true reason.
The reason, we firmly believe,
Was because of the "Roman Index."
A guy named Brutus,
When he had a dull evening
In the Apian cabaret,
And things were not breaking right,
Became aggressive against humanity
And put it in the calendar.

The women's page of most any newspaper is mostly about the men,
and Ed Oliver of Yonkers says,
"That is what the women are interested in."

Dear Roy—Speaking of famous personalities whose names end in
"n," how about this array: Al Johnson,
George M. Cohan, Mischa Elman, Christy Mathewson, Oscar Hammerstein, Louis Mann, Jack Britton, Julia Sanderson, Otto R. Kahn.

whose service would be required to manufacture the tools, machinery and other materials necessary to its accomplishment.
Other bills which will be reintroduced at the special session and which carry the promise of employment to many thousands of men are the water power and oil leasing bills, which it is believed can be rushed through in a form that will be acceptable to the country without much delay. The tremendous importance of these measures with respect to unemployment and reconstruction problems can scarcely be over-estimated.

Senator Jones of Washington, recently told the senate that his committee had reported on projects capitalized at $350,000,000 immediately on the passage of the water power bills alone. Seventy-two percent of the potential waterpower of the country is in states which have little or no coal. Senator Jones declared also that with the passage of the waterpower bill, the population of California, Washington and Oregon, would double in 10 years.

Opening up work on these waterpower projects would give employment to thousands of men, as well as develop also the opening up of the oil fields. The oil lands withdrawals of some years ago acted as a brake on this industry comparable only with the facts that since 1910 no permits have been possible for waterpower projects on navigable streams.

If congress passes the bills above mentioned and excludes immigration for four years, the unemployment problem in the United States will soon disappear, and with unemployment disposed of, bolshevism will no longer be even a remote menace.

MOVING AHEAD.

Another important step has been taken in the movement to make Janesville a bigger and better city.
The housing corporation has let a contract for the erection of 50 homes.
As soon as plans are drawn, actual work of construction will be started.
Janesville, which has shown little progress in the last 25 years, begin to emerge from its chrysalis and become a full-fledged city, a center of industry and the home of contented workmen.

The program calls for the construction of 50 homes. This will be followed by the erection of as many more as are needed. In this way more to build around, Janesville will well be on the way of becoming indeed a "City of Homes."

With the adoption of a city plan which will not only conserve the natural advantages at hand, but build for a greater and more attractive city in the future along lines which will assure economy, will come the opportunity to take our place among the thriving, contented municipalities of the middle west.

There are complaints that the high school site is too large, and other complaints that it is too small. And there you are. Both those complainers will never be satisfied with the same thing.

Can we pull together, or must we give up?

The board of education has done
the best it can, after long and careful investigation of school sites. Its selection has the approval of everyone in authority. If we are not big enough to pull together and get it done, this town will continue to be a back-number.

With airplanes carrying passengers,
steamships carrying freight and passengers, carrying conversation, the distance between Europe and America is going to be considerably shortened.
However, as far as the cables are concerned, nowadays, Europe is a long way off.

Tonight will be a good time to unload any ideas you have for opposing permanent roads for Rock county. A mass meeting will be held at the Atlantic theatre at which a thorough discussion of the bond issue will be made.

All that can be done is to select a school site that has as few disadvantages, and as many advantages, as possible. Any place will have disadvantages in itself, and faults in location for a lot of people.

Everybody agrees that we need a
new high school, but no site can be selected that will please everybody.
If we have to wait until we have a site
that everyone will like, we shall never
have a new school.

What a big idea there is in this movement for the dairy breed organizations to take up and foster in their extension efforts! There are a lot of men everywhere who would do very thing if there were some organization that details connected with it.
The dairy extension men must do some constructive work if their positions are to continue. Here is an opportunity to show the way for a bigger market for pure bred cattle.

What would it mean for a county's agriculture, if the livestock men could all get together on a proposition to exchange ideas? It would mean that the members could be induced to take that viewpoint; if each member made the trade with only one man who is now contented with a scrub bull?

What it means would be hard to determine, because the result would be so far reaching and because they would continue for generations to come.

Sketches From Life -:- By Temple*"Every Day I Got to Take THAT Out!"*FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March 27, 1879.—The following list of Republican office seekers will be voted on by the voters at the election: Mayor, Samuel C. Clark; City clerk, M. A.
Norris; City Attorney, Ed. Carpenter;
Justice of the Peace, J. S. Balch; City
Treasurer, F. S. Lawrence; Secretary of the Board of Health, H. Knoff.
After an illness of more than a year and a half, and one which was as severe as long, the Rev. H. C. Tilton of this city passed away on Wednesday evening. Mr. Tilton has lived in this city for many years and was one of the most loved and respected men here. He has been pastor of many Wisconsin churches, and also served as chaplain on the Thirtieth Wisconsin regiment during the Civil War. He served through most of the war with that regiment,
until ill health, caused by exposure,
caused him to resign. He then served as a minister and shortly afterwards was elected to the Wisconsin Legislature. He was also appointed a member of the State Board of Charities and Reform, by Governor Ludington. In his death Janesville loses one of its most well known and beloved citizens. His funeral will be held from the Court street church,
Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
Hon. D. C. Sloan of Madison was a visitor in the city today.

C. F. Myers is adding a new building on the west end of his Main street store. It promises to be one of the best in the city.
Prof. Hersee is around with more than his usual smile today. It's a daughter.

WHO'S WHO
in the Day's NewsEX-KING WILLIAM OF WUR-TEMBERG.

Probably the happiest of the ex-sovereigns of Germany is ex-king William of Wurtemberg and his consort, ex-queen Charlotte, a princess of exceptional beauty in her youth, to whose love for dancing Germans were indebted for the revival of the waltz after it had been banned for more than forty years by the late Emperor. Ex-king William and his wife profess to be contented with their lot. Possessed of ample private means, they have secured the services of the principal hotel of Stuttgart, their leading restaurant are living quietly and comfortably.
The ex-queen, Charlotte, is living there as "Frau" Wurtemberg, have voted as such in favor of the existing republican government at the recent general elections, and free from molestation and respect of their former life.

The fact of the matter is that William, who won his iron cross as a Russian officer in the war of 1870-1871, but who vigorously opposed the present war, always regarded himself as the first servant rather than as the more or less autocratic monarch of the nation. Elsewhere, in Germany, the national legislature, invariably kept his helmet on his head to indicate his sovereignty and his superiority in rank. William insisted on the equality of his head like the rest. He was devoted to sport and entertainment, and was undisciplined aversion for the Kaiser ever since, before the latter's accession, they were fellow officers of the guard at Potsdam.
The ex-king has no issue by his present wife, but has a lovely daughter by his first wife, a homely but sunny tempered girl, who is now a countess, and who has always abhorred court life and etiquette, and who, happily married to Prince Frederick of Wied, is well provided for.
Thanks to her husband's valuable estates and large fortunes in Holland.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

TRUTH.

Some are asked to die for truth,
Asked to sacrifice their youth
And their fondest dreams to give
That a principle shall live;
Bravely to their deaths they go,
Singing, cheering, though they know
From the fields of cruel pain
They shall never come again.

Others are not asked to die
That the flag of truth shall fly—
Are not asked to suffer pain
Or to face death's grim rain
That a principle shall live;
Shall not be destroyed by might;
They may pay an easier price
On the fields of sacrifice.

They are asked in days of stress
To forget their own success,
Putting selfish interest by;
That the flag of truth shall fly;
They are asked to rise above
Pain and grief and sorrow
And accept Truth's judgment new
As the men of battle do.

When the old gives way, 'tis then
Freedom makes her call for men;
Then it is she cries aloud

BIG SHOE BILLS
NOT NECESSARY

"It looks as if I would not be able to wear out my shoes with Neolin Soles. They have been in service about a year, and are still good," writes
W. C. Dickinson of New Haven, Conn.

It is natural that shoes with Neolin
Soles should wear a long time. Neolin Soles give extra wear where most shoes wear out quickest.

These long-lasting soles are made by Science to be especially tough and durable—comfortable and waterproof, too.
If you want to save money on shoes buy them with Neolin Soles. Good shoe stores carry them in many styles for men, women, and children. And you can have your old shoes re-bottomed with Neolin Soles at any repair shop.

Neolin Soles are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

"CLEAN-UP" WEEK SET FOR MAY 5-10; PLAN CITY-WIDE CAMPAIGN

"Paint Up and Clean Up" week in Janesville, May 5-10, is going to be pushed to the limit this year. This decision was reached by directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their meeting yesterday afternoon.

Committees will be organized by the Chamber of Commerce and the campaign carried to all parts of the city. Information will be furnished the school children so the message can be carried to their parents.

Raking yards, washing flies, getting rid of manure piles, and cleaning up the city generally will be urged. City officials will co-operate in the work and everyone will be asked to participate.

"Janesville is entering upon a period of enormous growth," said J. P. Cullen, president of the Chamber of Commerce today. "We have a good city and we want to impress upon the newcomers who are going to live here that we stand for cleanliness. There is nothing which labels a city as being backward as much as unkempt premises and dirty sidewalks and streets."

CHILDREN INTERESTED IN VICTORY GARDENS

That the school children of the city are wide awake to the need of the nation in regard to food stuffs, and are planning to grow Victory gardens on an extensive scale was demonstrated during this past week to the chairman of the Garden committee, Walter Helms, who made a personal visit to all the school buildings of the city and gave a ten minute talk to the children along these lines.

Many of them asked intelligent questions in regard to growing potatoes and sweet corn, with all the anxiety and enthusiasm was manifested and deep anxiety was shown concerning these matters.

Helms did not visit the high school or the Vocational school as Professor West has kept in touch with the pupils in these buildings along these lines and did not try to give the children anything but a simple little talk to awaken their interest and prepare them for the sale of the penny packages of seeds, which are to be sold by the committee from the Women's Federation next week.

The collection which the women are preparing includes six varieties of vegetables, of which three are lettuce, radish and beans are for summer use, and three, onions, beets and carrots can be used for winter vegetables. The flower seeds include three of the fragrant kinds, pink, red and white, and three of the bright colored varieties, nasturtiums, zinnias, and marigolds.

Mr. Helms had colored pictures of most of these varieties of vegetables and flowers which were mounted in a convenient way to show the children, and he confined his attention mostly to specific directions regarding the culture and habits of these varieties. In all he visited during the week eight buildings, besides the three parochial schools, talking to about 1,500 children. He was greeted everywhere with the greatest courtesy by the teachers in the different buildings, and was especially struck with the efficient manner in which the children can be gathered together at a moment's notice for any important event.

While the children of all the schools showed they were interested and were taking in what Mr. Helms was saying, he was particularly impressed by the way the pupils of the Lutheran parochial school took notes on the information given them. These lines, evidently written along these lines, and took notes as a matter of course, asking minute directions on the subject.

Another thing which particularly impressed him was that in the St. Patrick school when he entered the room, every pupil rose and stood at attention, until they were told to be seated. Mr. Helms was particularly anxious to see the prizes for Victory gardens for the encouragement of the school children, but until he is able to arrange matters with the Chamber of Commerce and the other members of the garden committee, he has no authority to act.

A modern up-to-date structure spanning the river at Jackson street is going to cost less than $81,000, according to bids submitted by seven construction firms and opened this afternoon by the Board of Public Works at a special meeting at the city hall.

The lowest figures submitted were those of the Wausau Iron Works, Wausau, Wis. J. P. Cullen and Son of this city were third in the list. The lowest bid was composed of Mayer Valentine, Alameda T. E. Walsh, City Attorney Roger Cunningham, City Engineer C. V. Kerch, City Clerk Vincent E. Kerch, and City Clerk Vincent E. Kerch, who were immediately following the opening and tentative consideration of the bids, and during this period the city attorney will determine the reliability of the bidders.

Two sets of plans were submitted by the city, and in addition, bids were called for for the street railway work on the structure. The figures from the seven firms were as follows:

Wausau Iron Works, A and B plans, both $78,400; street railway work, $3,000.

C. H. and E. Allen, Chicago, A and B plans, both $93,000; street railway work, $1,900.
Hicks Eng. Co., Iron Mountain, Mich. A and B plans, both $104,000; street railway work $1,600.
Seims, Helmer and Schaefer, St. Paul, A plan, $125,470; B plan, $126,220; street railway work $2,100.

After a brief adjournment was taken after which the board took up a proposition of purchasing an automobile for the use of the water department.

MEN SHOW TRAINING IN CULINARY LINES

It was a man-sized meal dished up in a thoroughly efficient and practical way, which was set before the feminine guests of the Methodist Brotherhood, last evening when the men of the organization entertained. It was the annual ladies' night. There was no woman of the job from the time that G. E. Townsend, as chairman of the supper committee, outlined his menu and divided up the work among the different members of his committee. There was no hitch in the arrangements, either. J. E. Lane took general charge of the kitchen and E. P. Hocking of the dining room. R. E. Gitchell was chief cook and Dr. F. T. Richards was chief coffee maker.

Three shelves of potatoes were pared, cooked in the wash boiler, and mashed and seasoned by the vegetable cooks, about all the kitchen force being consulted as to the proper seasoning. G. E. Townsend made the salad, which was tastefully garnished with "Anchors on top." He received many compliments on his skill. S. J. Hocking assisted in making the brown gravy which made an appetizing accompaniment to the potatoes. George Jacobs, E. G. Owen, George St. Clair and A. H. Johnson were general assistants in the dining up, and part of the force which kept things moving so smoothly.

Part of the K. P.'s were on duty all day, and the arrangements so perfected that when the two hundred guests filed into the dining room, they were seated at the tables, everything was ready to serve them promptly. The unique arrangement of the silver in military formation was noted and admired, and was ascribed to the army training of the head waiter, Mr. Hocking, who in white jacket was in command of the room.

The menu consisted of baked ham, mashed potatoes, escalloped corn, rolls, olives, salad, coffee, with a dessert of apple pie a la mode. About 20 men of the organization did the serving, and that they were well trained in their duties, was evident by the deftness with which it was done. A musical program was given by the Lotus Male quartette, and by Dr. Sydney Richards. The quartette is made up of George Paris, C. E. Bearmore, E. B. Van Pool, and Arthur Hocking. Dr. Richards sang "The Dew is Falling," "Duna," and "Twin Pools of Light." Mrs. R. L. MacCormack played a march on the piano when the guests filed into the dining room.

The addresses of the evening were along the line of the Centenary movement which is now engaging the attention of the Methodist church, and the speaker was Dr. Perry Miller. Dr. Miller with a team of six members had been holding meetings during the past week in the territory covered by the Janesville district. He had with him last evening four members of the team, one of whom, Rev. F. F. Lewis, gave the general introduction of the subject to the audience. The others were Rev. Adams, Whitewater, who spoke of interest in the subject, Rev. Fort Atkinson, who spoke on life service, and Rev. Turner, Beloit, who spoke on the subject of stewardship of property.

The conclusion of Dr. Allen's address struck the keynote of the thought when he said, "This great work planned for Methodism is linked up with God, and cannot fail to be of interest to every man, woman and child." Dr. Allen's happy humor and his dry drives at his clerical colleagues, are thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. This last meeting closes the series of meetings of the Centenary season. Robert Conway has been the president and J. R. Nichols the treasurer of the organization, during the winter.

COUNTY TEACHERS TO MEET HERE SATURDAY

More than 400 Rock county school teachers are expected in the city Saturday to attend the annual meeting of the county teachers' association.

Prof. Charles S. Pendleton, University of Wisconsin; Prof. H. R. Driggs, University of Utah; Pres. Melvin Brannon, Beloit college; Supt. M. G. Royce, Platteville normal, are among the speakers scheduled to address the teachers.

Sectional meetings will be held in the morning from 9:30 to 11:30, the general meeting in the afternoon at 1:15 at the high school. Pres. Frank D. Lowth, Supt. P. E. Converse, E. C. Phipps, J. E. Bassford, are chairmen of the different meetings.

OFFICE SEEKERS LAX IN EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

But two of the nineteen candidates for city offices have filed with City Clerk Victor E. Hemming their preliminary expense accounts as required by law. The final statement of expenses is due Saturday, and while several candidates have filed this statement certifying to no expenses, there is a large number, who to date have made no return whatever.

In the first ward, where voters have a bevy of candidates, five being out for the seat in the council, Theodore Hillier and G. Frank Praeger have declared their expenses up to March 15, when the preliminary account was due. Hillier spent $5.25 and Praeger $3.30.

Whether or not expense is incurred by a candidate for office, statute decrees an expense account be made and filed properly.

HIGH SCHOOL BOND CAMPAIGN FORCES READY FOR DRIVE

A special meeting of women and men from each ward in the city, was held on yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce when plans for work on election day were outlined and preliminary operations for the campaign were made.

The people present were Mrs. S. M. Smith, chairman of the women's committee, Mrs. Fred Sutherland from the 1st ward, with Mrs. C. S. Atwood as head of the ward committee. Second ward Mrs. Francis Grant and Mrs. G. B. Thuermer, third ward with Mrs. Abbie Helms as chairman and Mrs. Helen McNaught as assistant. Mrs. Louis Ameringer was also present at the meeting from this ward. Fourth ward, Mrs. Edward Hemming and Mrs. Hopkins, and fifth ward, Mrs. T. P. Burns and Miss Elizabeth Patterson. The men's advisory committee from each ward included Frank Crook, Carl Marquart, Edward Peterson, H. A. Moser, Ernest Clemons, Henry Hansen, Star Atwood, Charles Muggleton, William Engstrom, S. Smith, Joseph Delling, T. P. Burns, E. Roelling, Wm. Langdon, Clayton Spaulding.

The members of the Chamber of Commerce who were present in an advisory capacity were Francis Grant, J. T. Hooper, and Rev. Melrose. The question which has been started by those opposing any school building throw a scare into the women and deter them from voting was taken up and discussed and shown to be without foundation of fact. This was the legal right of women to vote on a bond issue concerning schools.

It was stated most emphatically that in a test case taken on a like question to the Supreme court of the state, it had been decided that women could vote on this question. In regard to the presence to women in the election booth the same ruling prevails as pertains to men. Two women are allowed in each place where the votes are taken to challenge the votes. Also workers are allowed outside, within a hundred feet of the polls. Various plans in regard to publicity were made by the members of the committee. The fact that to be born in on the women present of their responsibility in the matter, an alibi evinced an earnest determination to get out and do their share of the work necessary to carry the bond issue.

LOOKING AROUND

THAT GAL FAY FIGUE
"That when I got outta the army," mused the doughboy, "I'd get rid of everything military but here I blows back to the home port to find General Motors very much on the job."

AFRONT TO THE FLAG?
"And say," he continued, "I was down Main street to the park to see the big sign with all our names on it. Pretty good idea I think, but I wonder 'What Kink of an American Are You?' to have those dirty, torn and old weather beaten flags flapping in the breeze along either end of this sign. They'dotta be changed."

JANESVILLE BOOSTERS.
"Don't you think," inquired the landlady with the tone that prayed for the affirmative reply, "Don't you think, Mr. Contractor, that I could get thirty-five dollars a month for my flats? I am getting less than thirty now."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?
Mary E. Bliss of the town of Milton, has filed with County Register of Deeds Smiley a declaration for change of name. She sought the return of her maiden name, Mary E. Patterson. She had been married to a Mr. Patterson in January 1910. The Bliss' were divorced in January 1917.

BUT NO WOUND-STRIPES
Frank "Sporty" Gleason and Art "Chief" Karberg, Camp Grant quarter-master outfit lights, yesterday received their sixty dollar bonus, their most welcome discharge and five cell miles between camp and Janesville and immediately hoped a R. & I. rattler for the Bower City.

AND IT MIGHT NOT
We don't know, but nevertheless from indications this morning we are led to believe that tonight's style show will be rather a breezy affair.

BACK IN THE STATES
Tommy Cronin and Harold Stickney, two of the classiest basketball players who ever donned a high school uniform, have landed in New York enroute home from a month's tour in Europe. Tommy was also very much in the state calcium as a football player and at Dubuque College too where he was picked for the All-Iowa team as a running mate to "Moose" Dalton.

ANOTHER ONE
Louis Poquette severed connections with the k. k. bridge club, the Grant yesterday morning and at noon was back in clives on local boulevards.

OPERATE MOTOR CONVOY
Motor transportation on Rock county highways will commence Monday when Charles J. Bass starts the operation of two automobile trucks between Janesville and Atkins and between Janesville and Beloit. Bass has purchased a new two-ton truck in addition to his four-ton motor. He contemplates operating on a regular schedule and according to information received by relatives, "Tommy" was also very much in the state calcium as a football player and at Dubuque College too where he was picked for the All-Iowa team as a running mate to "Moose" Dalton.

IT MAY BE ACCIDENTAL
Just when Janesville is getting to be a lot of decoration comes "Normie" Carle minus his mustache. Up to a few days previous to this popular young man's removing, it could be pretty well observed by the naked eye alone.

WTFY NOT?
Someone has asked why the following isn't cited from the Gazette bulletin board: "Lakota Cardinals 41, Beloit Fairies 17; J. H. S. 18, Beloit H. S. 11." It is too good to be omitted. It ought to be made into a bronze engraving.

Athena Class Endorses High School Bond Issue

A vote in endorse the plan of a county nurse and a talk on the merits of the bond issue for the new high school were features of the meeting of the Athena class which was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Helms, South Main street. The topic of study was the "Conservation of Plant and Animal Life." The leader for the afternoon was Mrs. H. H. Faust. The question of the scarcity of wild game like the turkey, buffalo and fur bearing animals like the seal were discussed and methods outlined by the government for their protection were mentioned.

By the dissemination of information and bulletins and by encouraging intensive farming instead of extensive farming it was found that the prejudice of the farmers against scientific farm methods was being gradually dispelled. A general discussion of the matter ensued.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Faust with Mrs. Henry Hansen as leader. The topic of study is to be "Conservation of Human Life."

Five More People to Make Home in Janesville

Their names together with the cities from which they came are: Raymond Lasher, Beloit; Harry Roate, De Pere, Wis.; Mrs. M. H. Hewitt, St. Paul; and Percy G. ## News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Lucy M. Fox loves her work and she can prove it. Like many other motion picture players, stage stars and society women, she had planned a little trip to Palm Beach. She had brought a bathing suit, she had invested in some summer clothes and she packed her trunk, when a call came from Virginia Pearson to take part in a picture.

Miss Fox wanted to go to Palm Beach but she wanted to play in Miss Pearson's first picture under her own management. So she regrettably stored away her linen suits and her lace hats and took out her furs and heavy clothes. She was chosen to play the role of Miss Pearson's daughter in the picture, because she bears such a striking resemblance to the handsome star. Miss Pearson is delighted with her success in persuading Miss Fox to give up her trip to Florida.

Miss Fox was recently seen in "Why I Would Not Marry," and has shown herself to be a promising young actress.

The new picture is called "The Bishop's Daughter" and is rather melodramatic in spots but it holds the interest.

MAYBE IT CAN BE DONE

Since Bessie Barriscale's press agent declared that "the only thing that can be done is to find a new way to photograph a motion picture star with an automobile," he has been buried in suggestions, some of them coming from as far away as Japan. Here are a few of the less startling ones:

Drinking water from the radiator. Dropping a match in the gasoline tank.

Driving a car without scaring everybody to death.

Steering a car so that it goes the way she looks.

Driving a car over Niagara Falls.

Little up the Washington Monument.

Close-up of star refusing present of $7,000 car.

Ditto telling the motorcycle officer she was just leading along at 25 miles an hour after he had chased her 330 vests at 90 leagues an hour.

Fade-out of star bawling out the traffic officer.

Star refusing to have herself photographed with automobile.

TOO REALISTIC

Wallace Reid, with other members of the company, including Grace Darmond, the leading woman, Kay Laurell, and others, were en route to the northern part of California to make the big timber scenes for the picture. Among the episodes to be photographed was a train wreck, and everything was set for the effect when suddenly the caboose carrying the entire company to the location jumped the track on the trestle bridge near Arcata, burned completely over and ended the work for the day.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 18 years of age and keeping company with a gentleman 30 years old. On Sunday afternoon we were taking a walk and passed his bachelor apartment and he invited me to his apartment.

I became insulted and told him so, and he said he meant no harm by the invitation—that it was appropriate for any gentleman to invite a young lady to his apartment providing the room wasn't a bedroom.

Was it right for me to get insulted by such an invitation? He never before said anything insulting to me. I am young and foolish and jolly and enjoy life as near right as possible. I need to listen to advice from some sensible, experienced person who ought to know how to explain right from wrong to me.

I go with a young man who is in love with me and he is very fond of me. I think I ought to have the same privilege with the American boys. Is it right for me to go with different gentlemen to different entertainments?

You were right to feel insulted. Even if the man meant nothing wrong, he had no right to ask you to his apartment. People will gossip and if they heard of your doing such a thing they would spoil your reputation. Whether you liked it or not, that was the way it would be. You should not have allowed enough to know this and should not have suggested anything that might prove harmful to you.

If you are not engaged, you should feel perfectly free to go with other young men during the absence of the soldier and even after his return.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man 23 years of age. I have a young man acquaintance whom I think a great deal of, but only as a friend.

A WOMAN'S BUSINESS

BY LOE BECKLEY

WORK AND THE MAN

When Neill had gone, Walt stood with his head pressed against the glass of his window trying to think a way out of the situation in which he and Janet were groping away from each other. His brain was numb; his head was in a fever. Life was playing cat-and-mouse with him, and Janet, in her simplicity and self-reproach brought him no relief. They were not sincere with him. He did not know wherein he had gone wrong; any more than he could tell where Neill had failed. There seemed no one to blame for the situation any more than for a storm at sea.

A knock on his door went unheeded. The door opened and he heard some one enter his room. It was Lucy, her face rosy from a quick walk from her studio across the square. Walt knew by the step it was she. He did not feel in the mood for explanations and would not have given any. But Lucy asked him no questions; there was no need for them. She followed her instinct and simply picked up her work. Taking out sketches from her portfolio she laid them on the table. With a few tactful words she got his mind to work, and off his tormenting dilemma.

Only vaguely conscious of something wrong, so absorbed did he grow in his work that hours passed before the matter they had to settle for the matter they had to settle for the printers was fully attended to. Then, as the closing of Lucy's portfolio as she put in her sketches, came back the weight of his troubles to Walt. It was as though Lucy and work were his magic to banish his troubles from his mind. With their leaving would go their kindly protection. He dreaded being alone.

It only there were something he could do, no matter how hard, that would help solve Janet's problem. Over and over Walt groaned at the leaden weight so new to him—the consciousness of helplessness. He was not even aware that Lucy had been gone as his thoughts flew back again to their brooding.

"Walt I don't want to rush you too much with the book," Lucy said, studying him up and down, "but if you are in the mood for it, I'd like to talk over the next two or three pictures for your book. Would you care to have a chop with me up at the studio and talk it over?"

"Yes, yes, indeed, Lucy. I want to plug at that book just as hard as I can," he said, and he was willing to go!

"Then you'll have to keep at it pretty steadily," Walt said. "Because I'm in a perfect stew to get that book done and another one started. I've known nothing for years and years so blessed to me at this work we are doing!"

That's the way I feel about it, too, Lucy! Walt said earnestly.

They went out shopping for chops, salad and little cakes for their dinner, talking all the time of nothing but the work they had in common. Lucy did this from choice; Walt out of instinct for self-preservation from the canker of brooding.

They cooked and ate their dinner together in Lucy's studio, never ceasing to speak of their work. Lucy always struck sparks from Walt's mind and he, in his turn, fed her imagination.

They outlined the rest of Walt's book; and accumulated themes for a new one. And they stretched out rough ideas for Lucy's illustrations.

When, late that evening, Lucy showed signs of physical tiredness, Walt noticed it with a sort of tender gratitude for what she had done for him. Without her that day would have been one of torment only. With her aid, it had borne fruit and made him forget.

Not for one instant did Lucy speak either of herself or of him aside from their work. So true had been her instinct that she had dared to hope.

Walt got up as soon as he realized that Lucy must be tired. He had gone to the door and she had accompanied him, still talking of work, when suddenly, without warning either to himself or to her, Walt found himself with his arm about Lucy's neck and she was laughing and a dear!

Good night, little comrade!" he said, and kissed her.

Billions for Automobiles.

It has been estimated that by mid-summer there were close to 4,000,000 automobiles on the road in this country alone, and that $3,080,000,000 will be spent during the year in sustaining them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Rare Case of Jumping Jupiter Rheumatism

I wonder what you would advise for a man who has an obstinate case of rheumatism of the kind that jumps about from place to place, now in the neck, now over the heart, now in the back and head, mostly after he goes to bed? Would it help him to go to Hot Springs? What would purify his blood? (Mrs. R. H. W.)

ANSWER—It is exceedingly hard to diagnose, especially by long distance communication. If I were in the man's predicament I would not incline to Hot Springs in my opinion. If I traveled at all it would be to a good doctor somewhere.

Is Water Cress Fit to Eat?

I am very fond of water cress and have been eating it all winter. But some one told me it is not fit to eat. Is that true? (K. A. M.)

ANSWER—Some friends are always taking the moderate use of water cress contains considerable natural iodine and is a good thing for persons who have a tendency to simple goitre to eat frequently.

FULL FACE OR PROFILE

Did you ever notice how very different the same person looks when you see him or her profile instead of full face?

At the little inn where I sometimes spend part of my summers, two of us who were sitting on the veranda one day became quite interested in a new guest. He was sitting in a corner of the veranda about 15 feet away. The time was just after dinner of a summer evening, and while there was no bright sunlight, neither had the twilight begun to fall.

"Who is that?" we asked together. "He looks rather nice," we said. And then he turned. And behold, it was (as you have guessed) a young man who had been staying a full week at the inn. As he sat on the veranda rail, we could only see his profile, and it was so absolutely different from his full face that we had both been deceived.

Her Mother's Profile, Her Father's Face.

Again, I recently met a young girl, whose father and mother I used to know, and made this interesting discovery about her. Looked at full face, she was a perfect ingenue type, all innocence, eagerness and sweetness. But when you looked at her in profile you found to your surprise that her nose was aquiline, her chin very determined and the whole effect was that of a woman of great aggression. The front face was her father's, a gentle, courteous, unusually sweet and unspoiled person; the profile, her mother, a much more dominating and aggressive society matron.

Two Sides to Every Face.

Another discovery, which you have doubtless already made, is how different the two sides of a face may be. Almost everyone has a good and a bad, or shall we say a good and a better, side. Sometimes one cannot tell just why this is, and again, one can trace the effect to its cause. It may be that the mouth is a bit crooked, and the line is not so good on one side as the other. It may be that the hair waves more attractively on the right than on the left, or the eyes may be different. If you look closely you will be surprised to find how many people have one eye a little different from the other.

And the Eyebrow Is Only a Lesser Feature.

Faces are quite the most interesting thing in the world to me—their individuality, their play of expression, their alluring beauty, their fascinating ugliness, their likeness and unlikeness to each other, their possibilities when looked at as the indices of character. I can quite understand the lady in Stevenson's essay who said she could wonder herself crazy over the mystery of a human eyebrow. I think a book could easily be written on eyebrows alone. And that is but one of the lesser features of the face.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

BY EDITH MORIARTY

When Miss Frances Marion left for France last year little did she think that she would be the first woman to cross the line. But that is the record which she now has. Miss Marion, who has been an artist, a newspaper woman and a scenario writer, went to France with the purpose of filming the activities of women in the war and also of doing some secret propaganda work for the committee of public information.

It was the desire of the committee that she get to Germany as quickly as possible. The Red Cross, following its usual custom of sending supplies and comfort ahead of the troops, began loading its camions and ambulances soon after Nov. 11. And so, at the request of the committee, a public information, the Red Cross, always ready to co-operate, took Miss Marion as far as Treves, from where she secured passage with an American supply camion into the Coblenz five days ahead of the army.

Upon this part of her trip and the reason for it Miss Marion prefers to remain silent, but she has many interesting things to tell of her ride through the battle-scarred fields and cities of northern France.

"Since my return," she said, when interviewed in her apartment in New York, "I happened to remark that I had written a screen comedy while I was in the devastated country. A woman said to me, 'You heartless creature! How could you possibly write a comedy or even think in terms of humor in the face of such misery and destruction?' It was difficult to make her see that it was the only thing I could write at such a time. My own imagination has been stirred by scenes too big for words, one turns by a strange quirk of human psychology to the opposite extreme for sheer relief."

Miss Marion brings back with her many pitiful tales of the war-torn country and also an interesting account of the work of Anna Coleman

Chile Con Carne—One cup hamburger, one large onion, one large tablespoon butter, one-half can tomatoes, one can tomato soup, one can kidney beans, one large tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, red or cayenne pepper to taste. Water added to make desired consistency.

Melt butter in frying pan, add chopped onion, then hamburger and stir until very brown. Add tomatoes, tomato soup, sugar, salt, about one pint water. Then beans and let come to boil. DISCOVERIES.

With Foods that require long cooking, such as stews, soups, cheaper cuts of meat etc., and on ironing day when a long, even heat is desired—when you have a good, big bed of coals—put three or four old tin cans on the fire and they will keep a good, steady heat much longer than the coals alone. The cans are easily removed when the fire dies down.

In the Kitchen save labor and make the room look clean and inviting. Use fresh papers daily on the utensil table, on the kitchen cabinet board, on the dashboard of the sink and on the refrigerator. Cut bread and prepared vegetables and meat on slips of newspaper, then put the paper at once into the waste basket. Keep double layers of newspaper in the garbage pan. Wipe grease-covered pans and dishes with slips of paper before putting them into the dishwasher.

When cooking anything and it scalds in the kettle, never empty kettle, but set the kettle in cold water and the burn taste will be gone.

Quick Vegetable Soup—your vegetables and when almost done add only half to three-quarters pound ground beef.

WOLVES OF THE SEA

By RANDALL PARISH

Copyright by A. C. McClurg &amp; Co.

"You were on the Sinbad, three years ago?"

"I was that, Mister Carlyle," he answered grinning. "I know'd you the minute I came down here."

"Then that is all I need say on that line. Here's one of your mates, lads, who will vouch for me. Now, as I've been told, you are all of you in the same boat—you are prisoners on board. Luck has given us a chance to make a break, and get away. Captain Sanchez is wounded and helpless. Pedro Estada is dead, and I've got Manuel locked in that stateroom. His cut-throats are all below, and now all we've got to do is clap on the hatch and keep them there. Now, what I want to know is are you fellows with me?"

Watkins answered promptly; then Carter, the others joining in with less heartiness, the different accents revealing their nationalities. I knew sailors well enough to feel assured they would follow their leaders once the game started.

"That's good enough; now we're got to hit hard and quick, lads. There are six men on deck who are not with us. Watkins will take care of them with those fellows I don't assign to other work. Jones, you and Carter make straight for the forecastle and don't let anyone come up the scuttle. One of you had better drop down below, and prevent any of those lads from unbaring the door leading amidships. Who is the best for that job?"

"Let Carlson do it."

"All right—Carlson it is, then. You Frenchmen, and the two negroes, your part will be to ship the main hatch. Do a quick job, and clamp it down tight."

"I'll come down to you Carlson, as soon as we have the deck. It ought not to take more than five minutes to handle those lads, and slev around a cannonade. Watkins, you and Carter hand out the cutlasses from the rack; you boys will handle those better than firearms. Good; now are you all ready?"

NERVOUSNESS ON THE DECLINE

Doctors Encouraged, They Hold Out Hope for All

"Nothing wrong but my nerves," we hear it at home, at work, at every where. Certainly nervousness is a disease. A man or woman might better have a broken leg than a shattered, run down nervous system.

Overwork and worry drains the nerve cells and centers of all their strength and vitality, then you get your sleepless nights, poor blood, nervousness, worry and fear. The better doctors of today know just what to do in cases of this kind. A new "Phosphated Iron" rarely fails to strengthen and feed the Phosphated-nervous centers.

Phosphated Iron certainly does take hold. The way the majority of patients come back is remarkable.

What a change in appearance, too. The cheeks become rosy and fresh, the eyes sparkle, their step has the spring and swing of youth and their whole system seems to be alive with energy and good spirits.

Mr. Nervous Man or Woman. Phosphated Iron will do all this for you if you will give it a chance. Do not drag around, all in and half dead another day when help is at hand. Get busy! and be a live one once again!

To insure doctors and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron, we have put in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to give you pills or tablets. Insist on capsules.

This home-made syrup does the work in a hurry. Really prepared, and saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, then fill it up with a flavored granulated sugar syrup. Or use distilled molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup. And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. ## PETEY DINK—PETEY MAKES A MISTAKE TRYING TO DISGUISE HIMSELF.

There was a low murmur of voices, the faces watching me showing their increasing excitement and eagerness. Our little talk had served to arouse their confidence in my leadership, and with gleaming weapons in their hands they became self-reliant volunteers. Once turned loose my greatest difficulty might be to restrain them, rather than urge them on. I revenge for past wrongs was in each heart, and they welcomed a chance to strike.

I whispered a parting word of admonition into the ear of Dorothy, receiving in return a glance from her eyes, which gave a new throbbing to my heart; then straightened up, and pistol in hand, pushed my way through the throng of sailors to the foot of the stairs.

"Follow me, lads," I said quietly. We emerged through the companion, and I stepped aside as the others rushed by. There was no shout, no cheer, the fellows seeming to realize the desperate nature of their work, and the importance of surprise. They were outnumbered five to one, and their only hope of success lay in rendering their opponents helpless before they could rally to a defense. All the pent-up hate of years was in their hearts, blazed madly in their eyes; they were leaping at the throat of their prey, yet sane enough to comprehend even in their blood-rage that they must not, together. It was over so quickly I scarcely saw it all. My eyes swept from group to group—the four toiling at the cover of the main hatch; the fellows racing toward the forecastle; and Watkins' squad driving straight into the grouped watch beyond the foremast. It was smartly done; Watkins had taken no cutlass, but went in with both fists, asking no questions, but battering right and left.

his men surging after, with steel blades flashing in the sunlight. The astounded watch, cursing and fighting grimly, held for a moment, and then went staggering back against the port rail, unable to stem the rush, and yearning for mercy. I had view of Carlson dropping recklessly down the forecastle scuttle, and then sprang forward myself to give a hand to the four wrestling with the main hatch. To further we dragged it into position, forcing relentlessly back as we did so, a dozen struggling figures frantically endeavoring to reach the deck. Shots were fired, the bullets whistling through the opening, the flare lighting up the black depths below, revealing vaguely a mass of frantic men starting up, and cursing us fiercely in a dozen languages; but, in spite of them, we clamped the hatch down tight, and locked it securely into place with an iron bar.

Watkins needed no help; he had his party rounded up. To my orders they were driven into the cook's galley and a guard stationed at the door. Then I turned to the more serious work confronting me in the forecastle. We must have men enough to sail the back, and if I was to command them, I must first of all prove my courage and enforce authority. The whole success of our effort depended on this.

"What's going on below?" I asked. "Cursin' mostly," answered Carter, peering down through a slight upturning of the scuttle. "They don't just know what's happening yet, but the big bigger seems ter be raisin' hell. Carlson is a holdin' him back with his cutlass."

"Open up and let me down."

I felt, rather than clambered along the rungs of the ladder, coming to my feet on deck in the midst of a group of angry men. The light was so poor I could scarcely see their faces; a babel of voices greeted me, and more than one hand gripped me fiercely as the excited owner yelled a demand to know what in hell we were up to. I roughly cleared a space, aided by Carlson's cutlass, and fronted them. Towering above them all, his black apple-like face, distorted with rage, I distinguished the giant Cochose, his immense hands grasping a wooden bar ripped from a bunk. Plainly enough he was the leader. If I was to rule, this black brute must be conquered at the very start, conquered by my own hands, and in the presence of his mates.

"Stand back there lads," I said sternly. "I'll explain all that has happened presently, but first I am going to lick that black within an inch of his life. Step out of there, Cochose."

He came grinning widely, balancing the heavy club.

"You mean me, sah? You all think yer kin lick me?"

"Yes, I think so; I'll try it anyway. Here Carlson, take this pistol and shoot him. If anyone interferes shoot him. All I ask is fair play. Drop that club, Cochose, and throw away your knife. You and I will fight this out with bare hands."

His dull brain worked slowly, and he stared at me, his eyes ugly. His silence and lack of response, a growl from the impatient circle of men behind. One fellow kicked the club out of his hand contemptuously, and another plucked the knife from his belt.

"You big skulker," the latter said, with an oath of derision, "go on, and fight!"

"What for Ah fight this white man? Ah don't even know who he is."

"Then I'll tell you. Estada is dead; Manuel is a prisoner. I'm in command of this bark. You are a big, boasting cur! I heard what you said when I came down, and now I'll make you prove it."

I took two steps forward, my advance so swift and unexpected, the big negro had not even time to throw up an arm in defense. With open hand I struck him squarely across the face.

CHAPTER XXI.

In Full Possession.

A roar of delight went up. I knew sailors and felt they would welcome a fight like this and their immediate sympathy would be with me for starting it. More than that, this black bully, ruling over them by brute force, could be no favorite? They might fear him, but with that fear would be mingled hate, and a delight in his downfall.

In that instant, although I cannot recall removing watchful eyes from the negro's face, I received an impression of my surroundings never to be erased from memory—the gloomy interior, the deck, foul, littered with sea boots, and discarded clothing, and the great beams overhead blackened by smoke. The rays of the swiveling slush lantern barely illuminated the central space, the rows of bunks beyond remaining mere shadows, yet this dim, yellowish light, fell full upon the excited half circle of men who were roaring about the negro. They were a rough, wild lot, ranging in color from the intense black of Central Africa to the blond of Scandinavia, half naked, some, their voices mingling in a dozen tongues, their eyes gleaming with savagery.

I knew not whether Cochose lunged forward of his own volition, or was pressed on from behind, yet suddenly he was within reach of me, and the battle was on, his object evidently being to crush me in his giant grip, mine to oppose science to strength, and avoid his bear-hug. We swayed back and forth to the sharp pitching of the ship. Then he sprang straight at me determined to smother me to the deck by the very power of his onslaught. But I side-stepped him, getting in two swift blows, which rocked his head, and tore open 'oh cheek, from which blood trickled. Yet he kept his feet, blindly gripping for me.

I evaded his clutch by leaping aside, but the space was far too small to permit these tactics to carry long, and finally he had me. Yet, even as he seemingly crushed the very breath out of me, his giant strength met with a resistance which increased his fury. Already the fellow had lost his head, but I fought coolly, putting my skill against brute force, every wrestler's trick I knew flashing into my brain. Breathlessly, my flesh scraped and bruised, I wriggled partly free, and tripped him, his great body striking the deck with a thud. I felt with him, dragged down by his desperate grip, but was first upon my feet, saluted by a roar of delight from the lips of those crowding about us. As he staggered up also, I struck him again, a blow which would have ended the game, had not my foot slipped on the reeling deck. As it was it drove him to his knees, groggy, and with one eye half closed, yet with strength enough left to regain his feet as soon as I. This time he charged me like a wild bull, froth whitening his lips, scarcely appearing human in the yellow light. In mad rage he forgot all caution. His one thought to reach me with his hands, and throttle me into lifeless pulp. I fought him back, driving blow on blow through his guard, side-stepping his mad rushes, landing again and again on his body. Twice I got in over his heart, and at last, found the chance I sought, and sent a right jab straight to the chin. All the force of one hundred and eighty pounds was behind the clenched fist, and the negro went down as though felled by a poleax. Once weakly he endeavored to rise, but this time I used my left, and he never stirred again, lying there with no sign of life except the quivering of the huge body. Assured that he was down and out, I stood above him, gazing into the ring of excited faces.

"Go on!" came from the youth who was in charge of the vehicle immediately behind. "That ain't its number; that's the year it was built!"

Some one, just for a joke, asked the new clerk in the feed store for some sweet potato seeds. The clerk hunted all through the seeds but could find no sweet potato seeds and finally appealed to the boss.

The latter explained that he was being kidded and cautioned him about not letting smart Alecks put anything on him.

A few days later a lady entered the store and asked for some bird seed.

"Aw, go on," grinned the clerk. "You can't kid me. Birds is hatched from eggs."

A few days later a lady entered the store and asked for some bird seed.

"Aw, go on," grinned the clerk. "You can't kid me. Birds is hatched from eggs."

Faithful Friend

By JESSIE ETHEL SHERWIN

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

"You're as good as engaged, Lina," spoke her brother Gerald, aged twelve, with a gleeful laugh.

"And to whom, pray?" inquired Lina, and she flushed and fluttered as she guessed what his reply would be.

"Of course there's only one young man you would care about," said Gerald with a shrewd twinkle in his eyes. "And that is Alan Blair. He's going away for a week and he has hired me to take care of Hugo. I get two dollars for the job and we are to house the dog here. Is that all right?"

Lina made no demur. She and Hugo had always been good friends. A short, chunky but powerful bull pup, Hugo essentially minded his own business and was well behaved, except when he or his friends were imposed upon. Then he became a furious whirlwind of action.

"Mr. Blair took me through his room to get Hugo," narrated Gerald. Say, sis, he's got your photo on the mantel and a faded rosebud tied to a frame with a ribbon. Why, say! your cheeks look like rosebuds now. What's the matter, eh?"

"You ridiculous torment!" cried Lina, and, all pretty confusion but, oh, so happy eyed! left Gerald to himself. A few minutes later her sweet voice echoed from the garden as it expressed some great joy.

Lina did not try to hide from herself that she loved Alan Blair, and Alan Blair was only waiting for the fitting opportunity to assure himself of the fact. Lina worked at a large envelope manufacturing plant where a great many girls were employed. As well Aaron Todd, an under foreman, who was a distant cloud in the otherwise clear sky of her existence. He was a sullen, dark-browed fellow, who had pestered her by forcing his company upon her ever since she had begun work at the plant. Only the day previous she had resented his walking home with her, had told him clearly that she had thought nothing of him and never would, and shuddered even now as she recalled a fiercely hissed out threat that "she should suffer for her contempt!"

Hugo was disloyal to his new keeper and promptly followed Lina, with whom he was a great favorite. It seemed as though the sensible animal comprehended the interest of his absent master in Lina, for the next morning when she started for work he trotted by her side clear to the plant. Equally intelligent, Hugo appeared to comprehend that there was no admittance for him to the great factory, and reported, back to the somewhat anxious Gerald at the Moreton home promptly.

Evenings Hugo kept close to Lina whenever she took a stroll, as though his master had conferred upon him the dignity of companion and protector.

Aaron Todd had ceased to annoy Lina by continuing his unwelcome attentions, but she shivered as often during the day she noted him staring at her in a sinister way. One evening she was at the gate of her home enjoying the balmy evening air when a girl she knew as Etta Pearce approached. She was a rough, boisterous creature who had been discharged from the plant a week previous, and Lina had never been familiar with her.

"Mollie Burns wishes to see you, Lina," spoke the Pearce girl. "She is ill, and asked me to get you to come to her."

The unsuspecting Lina accompanied Etta, who led the way finally down a dark street with few houses. At one of those she halted and started up an unlighted stairway.

"Hold my hand in this dismal place," she directed Lina, and then after proceeding a few steps she abruptly thrust Lina into a lighted room, and slammed the door.

Neither had noticed that Hugo had kept closely behind them all of the time, nor that he slipped past Lina into the room and snuggled down into a corner.

Lina gave a great start. She turned white to the lips as she was confronted by Aaron Todd, sneering, wicked-eyed as ever, and she knew that she was in a trap.

"You won't scream," he observed, "for no one will hear you. I told you I was bound to marry you, and I shall. An automobile is waiting outside; clever Etta will go with us as witness, and ten miles safely away from here a clergyman is waiting. If you rebel it will be a close prison till you consent."

Lina uttered a loud scream. Hugo sprang to his feet. She backed to the door but Todd intercepted her. He seized Lina by the arm. A low but distinct warning growl issued from the throat of the watchful Hugo.

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

(This week's Mystery.)
Nothing stopped him—not even the seventeen office boys that barred his path.
The great inventor burst into the private office of the Fire-fly Extinguisher manufacturer.
"I've found it!" he cried. "The greatest invention of the ages!"
"It's a nutscope. You put the little machine around a walnut or hickory nut and—"
"What does it—?" began the manufacturer.
"And it tells you by this tiny hand whether the nut is good or bad. If the nut is bad, by pressing a little spring under the pistol-rod, it shoots the nut out the window—"

"What does—?"
"And if the nut is good, it cracks the shell and picks out the nut."

"How does it—?"
"You first place the machine around the nut and by listening to certain vibrations inside the shell, by this little dial it tells you all about it. By the use of a secret needle-valve these vibrations registered by the dipp-needle make it quiver slightly, or much, as the case may be."

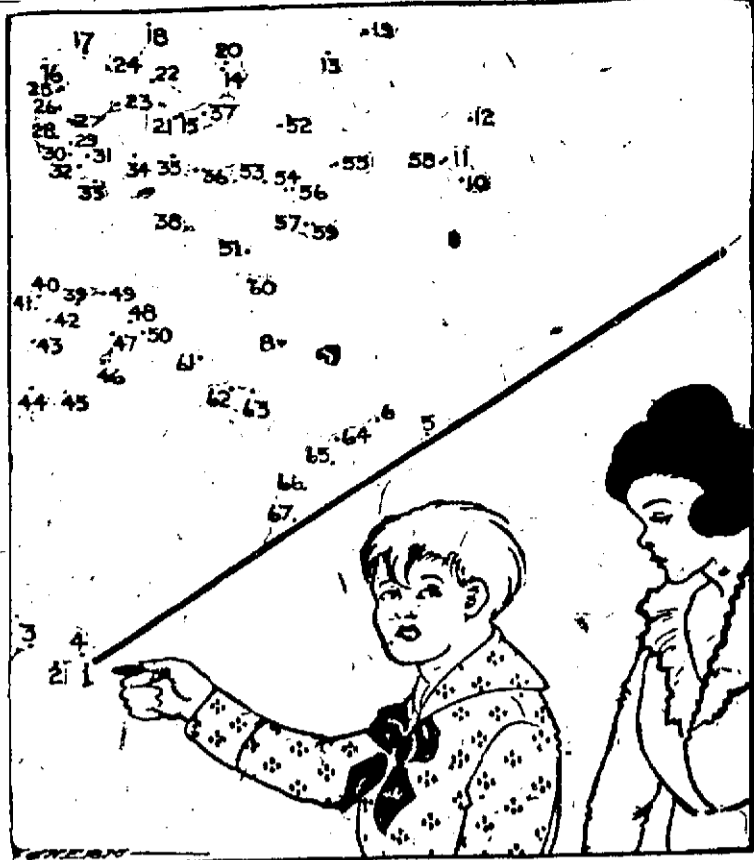

"But where is the secret needle-valve?" asked the manufacturer, showing slight signs of interest.
"Ah, that's just it," smiled the great inventor. "If you will give me thirteen thousand dollars in cash now, I will show it to you."

"Get out," sniggered the manufacturer. "How do I know the thing is any good? Then my thirteen thousand will be gone and—"
"Then I can't show you the secret needle-valve—for how do I know you won't scout with it and not pay me? Good day."

(What was the secret needle-valve like? The reader working it out will receive a one-way trip to devastated Europe providing the necessary passports may be obtained when his brain is examined. Ed. M. G.)

"The Honorable Gob's Uniform" As Written by Former Local Man

William Pearl, Janesville youth, now with the navy at Brest, France, writes a few suggestions about gob's uniforms which will correct a number of wrong impressions. He writes as follows:

"What is a gob? Why he is the man who did his bit at and around the four corners of the world. But—this is not about how or where he did his bit but what he wears. We have seen so many pictures, cartoons, movies and the like showing sailors on board ship doing their work with flat hats that it seems almost time for someone to get up and protest.

"A sailor on board ship wears white hat or watch cap—the watch cap being a knitted affair—while the uniform for liberty, inspections, leave and in case of a parade is blue (flat) hats.

The uniform for men stationed ashore is blue with white suits in summer unless an order to the contrary is issued. For instance the uniform at Brest is blue the year round with white hats at all times.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Well, I couldn't go out on the Pleasant Meadow to count the tall feathers that Robber Hawk lost when the roman candle which Uncle Lucky set off in the last story, hit that wicked old robber bird. It was raining so hard, you see, I didn't want to go out, but Robbie Redbreast, this morning came to my window and told me he had counted twenty-seven feathers, so it's just as well I didn't go out and get a shower bath.

And now let's see what these little rabbits are doing, for it's about time they came out of the house to go Luckymobiling.

"If that old Red Rooster doesn't take better care of my car," said Uncle Lucky, looking it over carefully before he hopped in, "I'm going to report him to the Policeman Dog." And the old gentleman rabbit was right too, let me tell you, for the Luckymobile seat cushions were all dusty, which showed that the old lazy rooster hadn't dusted them off with his featherduster tail.

Well, after Billy Bunny had cleaned off the dust with a little broom, the two rabbits hopped into the car and drove away, while Mrs. Bunny stood in the doorway waving her pink call apron after them.

"Good-by mother, we'll be back, safe and sound, all right. Tell Red Rooster not to shirk his duty and do his work. We'll be home tonight."

sang Billy Bunny, and then he was around the corner and out of sight.

"Pretty soon, not so very far, they came to a little tent by the roadside. And right in front of it sat a Billy Goat with a drum. And as soon as he saw the two little rabbits in their automobile he began to drum as hard as he could. So Billy Bunny stopped the Luckymobile, for he was steering, you see, because the old gentleman rabbit had a touch of rheumatism in his left hind toe.

"Hold on," said Uncle Lucky. "We'll take you down to the village." So the Billy Goat jumped into the Luckymobile, and away it went straight for Rabbitville, U. S. A.

"Who are you?" asked the little rabbit.

"Why I am Billy, the Drummer Kid," answered the little Billy Goat.

"My father's gone to France to fight, so I stay home and drum. Until I'm old enough to go. And hear the bullets hum."

"Good for you," said Uncle Lucky, and then generous old gentleman rabbit took a lollypop out of his vest pocket and a ten-carrot gold piece out of another and gave them to the little drummer goat.

"I'll go right down to the Three-and-One Cent Store and buy some Savings Stamps," said the little Billy Goat, and he put the drum inside the tent and started away.

"Hold on," said Uncle Lucky. "We'll take you down to the village." So the Billy Goat jumped into the Luckymobile, and away it went straight for Rabbitville, U. S. A.

"Good for you," said Uncle Lucky, and then generous old gentleman rabbit took a lollypop out of his vest pocket and a ten-carrot gold piece out of another and gave them to the little drummer goat.

Edgerton, March 27.—About 75 soldiers and sailors were present at the smoker given in their honor by members of the G. A. R. last evening at Academy hall. There were present also a number of citizens as guests who helped welcome the boys home again. The members of the post assembled at their hall and when their guests arrived and were seated the fit and drum corps, marched around the hall and took their seats. Commander Russell then gave a short address of welcome in behalf of the members of the G. A. R. The meeting was then turned over to Mayor Leary who acted as chairman. After he had given a short talk he introduced Master Buddie Holt and Little Miss Marie Doty, who extended the boys a welcome home in a way that was most amusing. D. P. Devine, I. Howell, and F. O. Holt gave short talks of welcome. Mrs. J. C. Wason, maker assisted by Mrs. A. Jensen, sang two songs. The program then proceeded in singing. After the program refreshments were served after which the soldiers and sailors under the command of Lieutenant Ellingson, gave a short drill. Before the evening's entertainment was brought to a close a motion picture was made and extended the members of the G. A. ## HUSTLE IS NEEDED TO FILL COUNTY QUOTA

About 600 pounds of old garments and pieces of clothing have been received and packed at the local Red Cross old clothes receiving station, city hall, to be sent to the needy overseas. Much more is needed to meet the county quota of 7,700 pounds. The Red Cross committee has issued the following appeal:

"Don't forget to hunt up your cast-off clothing for the drive, which will continue through this week and next week in Rock county. Remember the country is asked for twice as much as on the previous drives and Rock county's quota is 7,700 pounds. Don't be afraid your garments are too badly worn. Every bit of clean, strong material is welcome—you will never know how great the need is over there until after you have given us your outworn clothes go to the openings and get something new and give the Red Cross your second or third best that you were going to put there. You will not wear it more than two or three times, so bring it to the Red Cross and have it placed where moth and rust do not corrupt."

DEMETRAL THROWS
BULGARIAN CHAMP
TWICE IN ONE HOUR

(By Kid Biffy)
Young Demetral defeated Jim Samson, and Frank Brown pinned Ed Herman to the mat a couple of times in two clean and hotly contested wrestling matches at the after theater last night. The Greek speedster showed local fans and incidentally the Bulgarian middleweight little claimant a few fine points about the game.

Samson gave Demetral a tough time of it although it was easy to see that the Greek was the better wrestler all the way through. The first bout between the two was the longest of the card. It took Demetral just 47 minutes and 23 seconds to flop the Bulgarian with a combination body and head hold.

Samson was the under dog the whole route, but the Greek seemed to have a hard time to get both his shoulders to the mat because the Bulgarian had the knack of slipping out from dangerous positions just at the right time. The Greek had the endurance, while Samson didn't seem to be in the best of condition.

The second fall went to Demetral in 4 minutes and 35 seconds. The Greek used his headlock for quick action in this bout, and made his opponent give up before he was actually flopped. Combining lightning speed and agility with brute strength which he used to good advantage, Demetral exhibited some real form in the two bouts. Although he was outwheeled, he had it all over his opponent in the way of endurance and ran him ragged all over the mat.

Demetral likes Janesville and says he is absolutely going to make it his home this time. He thought he would remain here when he spent a few weeks in the city last summer, but he didn't. This time he states he is positively going to stay and put on some real wrestling matches. He may meet Charlie Olson, Waukegan boy, on a local mat here in a few weeks. Olson's challenge to the winner of last night's bout was read before the match.

A hot struggle developed in the preliminary bout between Brown and Herman, the former returning winner in 9 minutes and 50 seconds in the first bout and in 11 minutes and 30 seconds in the second. The Milwaukee Kid outweighed his Beloit opponent by 10 pounds, but he didn't have the speed. He fought gamely throughout, but couldn't stand the gauntlet. He puffed like a dog on a hot summer day when he got through the first heat. Brown obtained both his falls by reverse body holds.

The program afforded some high class entertainment to the 100 sporting fans present. It is to be regretted that more people could not have seen the exhibition. E. R. McKelvie, local barber, acted as referee.

SPORT
SERIAL

(By K. L. EAGON)

Boys, tip the kelly to Edgerton. From that thriving little city today comes the info that Edgerton is going on the baseball map strong.

They've formed a special baseball committee there, and say they will have "some team."

The word reads that Beloit and Janesville will be challenged. Janesville isn't going to turn down any challenges, none.

So let's get that team started. And now comes the biggest laugh of all. They do say that the Willard-Dempsey set-to, July 4, will be nothing but a large movie with Doug Fairbanks as referee. The fight fans are sure getting weary of such jokes, and the chances are the mill might not even make a good film.

We'd like to find out whether or not sentiment in Janesville is for a ball team to represent the city. The writer would like to hear from interested parties. Shoot.

Illinois legislature has an amateur boxing bill to conjure with. Which behoves us to state that many legalized mills have been verah amateurish. Yerah.

Jack Johnson wants to return to the United States. So does the Kaiser's son. Nuff ced.

Wisconsin bowlers have been showing the way in the national tournament at Toledo. Fair enough.

Why is the Fourth of July? We leave it to you. The first is enough.

EDGERTON WILL HAVE FAST-BASKETBALL NINE;
PLAY NEARBY CITIES

(By Special Correspondent)

Edgerton, March 27.—The baseball committee recently appointed by the Chamber of Commerce met last evening and discussed the organizing of a local baseball team for the coming summer. Notices will be sent to about 20 prospective players in Edgerton and vicinity requesting their presence at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce rooms next Sunday to decide upon the material for a team to be known as the Highway Trailers of which Ben Smith has been appointed manager.

It is the intention of the committee to obtain the best available material and give Edgerton a team that will be capable of holding its own with amateur teams from any of the neighboring cities.

The management will endeavor to book games with teams from Rockford, Beloit and Janesville, as well as some of the other nearby cities, and it is hoped the team will receive the support of the fans to such an extent that the committee will not feel that its determination to give Edgerton a good team will be vain.

ALL-STARS TO MEET
BELOIT, SATURDAY

The "V" All-Stars will play their nineteenth game of the season at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night at 8:15 when they will buck up against the Beloit Winnabagoes, headed by Pat DuVallon. The Winnabagoes have two or three high school and ex-high school players.

Chick Babcock will hold down one of the forward positions for the local side with Elton Fulkerson as his running mate. With Ted Hager on the pivot job and Graesslin, Graf, Zahn, Luehke, and Marko as guards, the Stars will take the floor determined to cop.

This game should be a hot one if it is anything like previous ones between the two teams. The Stars won the first one 24 to 21, while the Beloit five posed out a 20 to 18 victory in the second.

The Stars are awaiting a reply from Milwaukee for a game with the locomotive apprentices, known as the Panthers. The Cream City team has been given the choice of three dates. It will probably accept April 5.

The Stars will wind up their season after three or four more games. —RIDE ON CONCRETE—
